SCHOOL REPORT.

To the Citizens of Bedford :

In presenting to you the annual report of the schools under my care I must state that, although they have not been in all respects just what I would have liked to have had them, yet a good degree of progress has been made in the most of them. The teachers as a class have labored faithfully, and for the good of the pupils.

In one or two districts where young teachers have been employed, difficulties have arisen which have proved injurious to the schools, and for which the teachers, perhaps, were partially in fault, yet, as we generally find it the case, the trouble in a great measure could be traced back to lack of judgment on the part of the parents, and others outside of the schools who had little or no interest in their welfare.

Parents have no right to condemn a teacher before they have visited the school, and satisfied themselves by personal observation, that the complaints entered have some foundation in fact.

I have an earnest sympathy with every young and inexperienced teacher, for I have traveled that road myself.

Young teachers often lack wisdom, judgment and discretion. They often lack sympathy on the part of those who ought to feel most deeply interested in the welfare of the school.

It is very easy to throw obstacles in the way of success ; it is equally easy to give a word of encouragement or caution ; and who can estimate the amount of good that may be secured therefrom, or of evil that may be avoided, by the utterance of such a word at the right time.

The teacher employed for the winter term in District No. 9 refusing to conform to the rules lawfully prescribed for her, was accordingly dismissed. Again the fault lies with the parents. There are many disadvantages arising from the various kinds of text-books used. In one school I found three different arithmetics, in another three different histories. This is a great wrong.

During the year I have thought best to change the readers in order to create, if possible, a greater interest among the pupils in that branch of study. The improvement in reading in many of the schools convinced your Superintendent of the wisdom of her course.

The third terms of the schools in Districts Nos. 1 and 6 being in session, I shall be unable to make any report of them.

To those parents and teachers, who with heartfelt co-operation have, under all circumstances seconded my efforts for the wellfare of the young, I express my grateful thanks.

Desirous that all may be done that can be for the improvement of our common schools, I remain yours in the cause of education.
